

ACA facts

THE AFFORDABLE CARE ACT
IN KANSAS

SMALL BUSINESSES AND RURAL COMMUNITIES

Health Insurance Marketplace Timeline:

February 2013

Kansas decided to pursue a Federally run Health Insurance Marketplace.

Now – October 2013

Federal government will set up the Health Insurance Marketplace.

October 1, 2013

Kansas residents are able to begin enrolling in the Health Insurance Marketplace on their own or with assistance from Navigators.

January 1, 2014

Health care coverage begins for those who enrolled.

Adapted from the author's ACA Facts series for University of Wisconsin Extension. Publications from Kansas State University are available at: www.ksre.ksu.edu. Contents of this publication may be freely reproduced for educational purposes. All other rights reserved. In each case, credit Roberta Riportella, Ph.D., ACA Facts: The Affordable Care Act in Kansas, Small Businesses and Rural Communities, Kansas State University, July 2013. K-State Research and Extension is an equal opportunity provider and employer. John D. Floros, Director. MF3104 July 2013

Small businesses (like many farms) make up a large portion of Kansas businesses. The Affordable Care Act improves health insurance options for these small businesses, employees, and their communities.

Access to Insurance:

ACA ensures that individuals with pre-existing conditions cannot be denied insurance and that no one can have their policies cancelled nor have any lifetime limits on the amount paid out for essential benefits.

Starting in 2014, a large marketplace of affordable health insurance options will be available to individuals (including the self-employed) and small businesses to purchase insurance for themselves and/or their employees. This is called the Health Insurance Marketplace or Exchange.

Businesses with fewer than 50 employees are not required to provide insurance for their workers but they can. Their employees can compare their options and purchase health insurance on their own through the marketplace. Some employees will be offered tax credits to help pay for the cost of insurance.

Starting sometime in 2014 small businesses and their employees will be able to purchase insurance through a SHOP (Small Business Health Options Program) that will be available through the Marketplace.

Tax credits for very small businesses, like farms with less than 25 workers, are already available. Small businesses can qualify for tax credits up to 35 percent (25 percent for nonprofits) of their current health insurance expenses and 50 percent (35 percent for nonprofits) starting in 2014.

To learn more about the 2014 tax credits and to find out if your business is eligible for a tax credit right now, go to: www.irs.gov/uac/Small-Business-Health-Care-Tax-Credit-for-Small-Employers.

Access to Care:

Some health care providers will receive incentives to work in rural communities, which will increase access to health care.

The expansion of telehealth services and new technologies (e.g., connecting with distant site practitioners) will increase rural Americans' access to specialty care options.

Other Resources:

Small Businesses and the Affordable Care Act
<https://www.healthcare.gov/small-businesses>

Author: Roberta Riportella, Ph.D., Kansas Health Foundation Professor of Community Health, School of Family Studies and Human Services, Kansas State University; 785-532-1942; rriporte@ksu.edu

For K-State Research and Extension's updated ACA news and developments, visit www.ksre.ksu.edu/issuesinhealthreform/.

Kansas State University Agricultural Experiment Station and Cooperative Extension Service